

Question

5 How important is it to protect the environment through the planning process?

0
1	1
2
3	4
4	9
5	60	Of total	100.00%

- Protection important but stagnation to be avoided
- Planning must be sensitive to above
- Development to be sympathetic and enhance environment
- Maintain low light pollution
- Flexibility and less red tape
- Wildlife need homes too
- Retain existing character within conservation area / AONB
- Preserve conservation area and AONB
- Cling to conservation area. More flex in AONB
- Vital that we protect from inappropriate development eg old PO
- Maintain beautiful rural environment but rigid planning restrictions do not help community grow. Male judgements on case by case basis
- Devpmt should be sensitive and progressive. Can village develop guidance / styles for development?
- Devpmt must be sympathetic to environment
- Preserve AONB and conservation area
- Would appear different rules apply in different areas
- Some recent devpmt inappropriate for where it is positioned
- Includes house designs for a village not an urban / suburban context
- Conservation area and AONB defuine Cradley, bseides its community support
- Planm for essential needs rather than pickeld in aspic approach
- Bulid and develop sensitively avoiding any new access to 4103
- Pixiefield filed should be part of AONB and conservation area
- Keep greenfield sites green
- sympathetic devpmt enhancing community is acceptable (avoiding single large areas) and of appropriate style.
- Our environment isn't just the natural environment but also what we build and the community we live as part of
- Yes, it should be considered and protected to a reasonable level but not at the detriment of sympathetic development.
- The village needs to grow and develop - However I believe development should be sympathetic to the surroundings.
- None
- We do not need any more large estates built in the village
- Any development should not be detrimental to local views
- it is very important to retain present status
- AONB should be protected. UK being swallowed up by building
- "A romantic and beautiful parish" (Littlebury's Directory 1867-7) We are in grave danger of losing this.
- See 3.6
- Informal use of domestic property for commercial activities should be more closely monitored.
- Protection of the rural and historic environment of the Parish is essential for its future and is the reason that most of its inhabitants have chosen to live here.